

Creating your product is like bundling products together. You can build the product based on the business requirement and choose the basic components to build your product. However, you will have the flexible product build option with the product serialization.

This product type can be used to customizable products from the existing predefined option. Each product that you have built will be identified by a unique serial or sequence number and will include a predefined set of attributes sourced from the selected optional products.

After the product is built it will have its own quantity and pricing calculation method. The rules and option-based feature will help you build your product within Acumatica.